Reason(s) For Decision	As set out in the published report. Cabinet on 8 November 2012 had previously agreed the model for day services for adults with a learning disability. The new model is based on four key elements: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>i. improved local support for people with complex and multiple disabilities;</li> <li>ii. specialist support for older people with a learning disability including those with dementia;</li> <li>iii. a diverse community-based support to replace large resource centres with small drop in services. This enables universal services, specialist services and other resources to be used to offer more personalised support packages;</li> </ul>

	iv. improved access to employment, training and volunteering opportunities for those that are unable to participate, utilising social enterprise, self employment and traditional routes to work. The assessed eligible needs of all day care services can be met with the proposed new use of buildings in Malvern.
Alternative Options Considered And Rejected	As well as a positive impact on the assessment the proposed model could have some negative impacts for service users. Aspects of the pilot for the new model have been amended to mitigate possible negative consequences. Any adverse impacts have been highlighted within the support planning process and will be monitored during the pilot.
