

There are many different questions you could be asked in an interview. These are examples of other questions you might be asked.

Think about your answers to these questions. You might like to make some notes.

What are your strengths and weaknesses?
Why should we hire you?
Do you have any interests outside of work?
What is an achievement you're most proud of?

Towards the end of your interview, you may have the opportunity to ask your own questions.

This is a good opportunity to ask questions and find out the answers to any questions or queries you might have.
