

To Whom It May Concern,

I am once again writing to object to the Lea Castle Farm planning application.

Having listened remotely and in person to the inquiry so far, the legal proceedings feel a world away from the reality at the heart of this application.

My previous concerns have not changed, and my fears continue to deepen for this site and the communities who cherish it. It is disheartening to hear the site described to us by the appellant's 'expert' witnesses, who have not spent any considerable time there, and whose interest in this issue is purely monetary or academic.

It is not temporary to me and my husband. We live 500 meters from the site, in the 'urban sprawl' of Kidderminster. Lea Castle is where we go when the world is too much, when we need to take a moment.

In fact, because of its openness, the Lea Castle Farm site is the only place locally that I feel safe as a woman walking or running alone. I could not say the same of a public right of way directly through or around a quarry. What a sad thing it would be to lose that freedom.

The weather is changing and my health is changing with it, as my asthma becomes frightening reports and research papers on this topic? How can there be any acceptable level of harm when it comes to breathing in and out?

This inquiry makes everything seem so complicated, when it should be extremely simple. This application is wrong. If this application is appropriate in law, (s)-15.1 (tp)n
